New Public Artwork Adorns Glendale's Murphy Park. Visitors to historic downtown Glendale will enjoy the most recent public art enhancement to Murphy Park. The artwork, The Enlivened Pathway, adorns the seat wall along the pathway at the top of the park's amphitheatre.

Phoenix artist Kristine Kollasch was selected by the Glendale Arts Commission and the Glendale Library and Arts Department for the $13,000 Murphy Park public art project. Kollasch held a tile-making workshop for the community at the February 2011 Glendale Jazz and Blues Festival, working with festival goers to make ceramic tiles while enjoying the music. During the weekend event, jazz and blues enthusiasts, including many young people, made over 600 handmade ceramics tiles, which Kollasch incorporated into her artwork.

Low-Income Families May Be Eligible For Repairs On Cooling Units. While Valley temperatures have been below normal, there's no doubt that higher temperatures are ahead. And as temps go up so does wear and tear on evaporative coolers and home air conditioning units. For high-risk groups, including the elderly and small children, it is critical that these units are operating properly.

Thanks to federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds, the city of Glendale can provide emergency repair assistance to qualified, low-income families and the elderly who are Glendale residents. While the Emergency Home Repair Program covers a variety of needs, some of the most requested and critical calls come in the summer for repairs to existing home cooling units.

The city's Emergency Home Repair Program utilizes a non-profit partner, Community Services of Arizona (CSA) to provide emergency repair services. Examples of the types of repairs allowed include electrical, mechanical, plumbing and roofing.

To qualify, applicants must own and occupy the residence, and meet income requirements based on family size and program criteria. Funding is limited; repairs are approved on a case-by-case basis depending on the type and severity of the emergency. For more information, or to apply for assistance, please call CSA directly at (480) 963-6276, extension 215.
